Pink Noise by FORK

2011, 5 stars, Musicals and Opera

Venue: Assembly George Square

Grabbing your attention with astounding showmanship FORK is a must see performance for any fan of pop or rock music. Best described as Madonna's a cappella step kids, FORK are an amazing act, not just for their singing but for their adherence to all the tropes of pop music. Whether mimicking the sentiment of pop ballads in their own mid-show video performance or pulling out all the stops with their interpretation of Lady Gaga's Bad Romance this is an act that not only showcases for amazingly talented musicians but does so with a knowing wink at themselves and the pretensions of the pop genre.

The quality of their beat boxing and sound mimicry is so good that you'll struggle to believe that this is a live show. There are a few moments where you can hear the difference but these moments are so far apart that they'll simply remind you of how talented FORK are. Fork has an amazing ability to rally the crowd and throughout the performance there is incredible energy which builds into very natural call and response choruses. At no point did the crowd feel coerced, there was no begrudged applause. This show is a sing along hit waiting to happen. Go expecting a concert, you'll not be disappointed.
